Lifelong Literacy Development

It All Started at the Wayne State University College of Education

In celebration of her 50th anniversary from earning her doctorate in reading from the Wayne State University College of Education, Goodman returns home for a special conversation with faculty, students, and alumni. She will paint a portrait of how what we know about literacy learning and teaching was influenced by the work of faculty and students in the college.

Goodman — along with other colleagues and under the direction of Professor Kenneth Goodman — established the Miscue Research Center, which has influenced the way teachers support literacy learning with their students. Through Kidwatching, she will discuss the role of miscues in understanding how children and youth learn to read and write.

Wednesday, October 18, 2017
5:30 to 7:00 p.m.
Wayne State University
College of Education
5425 Gullen Mall, Room 10 (lower level)
Detroit, MI 48202

Register now

For more information, contact Kathleen Crawford-McKinney at kmcrawf@wayne.edu.